The Improvement of Teaching

A matter close to the hearts of all members of the University underwent serious discussion at the April meeting of General Faculties Council: how best can the University as a whole continue to improve the quality of instruction? On 28 April, Council's debate centred on a series of recommendations proposed by the GFC Committee for the Improvement of Teaching and Learning (CITL), the recommendations having been formulated after the CITL had received final reports from Faculties outlining their current and, where appropriate, future methods of assessing teaching. Prior to the Faculties preparing such reports, everyone on campus had the opportunity of reviewing the CITL report, published in Folio on 8 February 1979, "Procedures for Evaluating Instruction in a University Setting."

There were ten recommendations considered by GFC in four groups. Not all the recommendations met with Council approval, however, and there were several amendments to the original recommendations presented with the endorsement of the GFC Executive Committee. Also, several major concerns were addressed. For example, should there be universal assessment procedures? (The consensus seemed to be that there should not. The various components of the University might well require quite different methods of assessment.) What manner of incentive might be offered to members of the teaching staff as a "reward" for improvement and, if there were a financial incentive, what sort of distinction could be drawn between good teachers who become excellent and poor teachers who merely achieve satisfactory performance? What should be the role of the CITL itself: probouleutic, deliberative, or in some sense executive? Also, how best can the University bring its deep concern for the improvement of instruction to the attention of the people of Alberta, those whom it serves?

Discussion, then, covered a wide range of topics. Nevertheless, the following recommendations were adopted by Council:

"With respect to the kind of teaching evaluation the University should have.

1. That individual Faculties be left to decide which methods of evaluation suit them best.
2. That individuals, Departments, and Faculties be encouraged in every way possible, to adopt some kind of formal procedures, based on open and critical discussion of the principles on which such procedures should be based, and what the evaluation should be for."

"With respect to the sharing of information about teaching evaluation:

3. That CITL serve, with assistance from Institutional Research and Planning, as a repository for: a) reports on teaching evaluation prepared and discussed (and therefore no longer controversial) within Departments and Faculties; b) particular evaluation instruments and procedures developed by individuals, Departments, and Faculties; c) help in interpreting evaluation instruments and information; d) further reports on the effectiveness of these instruments and procedures. And therefore, 4. That some means be devised by which CITL may regularly disseminate this information, in digested form, to the rest of our colleagues, to Departments, Faculties, and other bodies within [CITL's emphasis] the University community. Suggested means of dissemination might include a regular newsletter type of publication, ideally as, let us say, a monthly column, or insert in Folio."

"With respect to improved discussion of the nature and the use of teaching evaluation: 5. That GFC urge the Chairmen's Council and Deans' Council to consider the problems faced by Chairmen and Deans in gathering information and interpreting it, and reporting on their Department and Faculty members' teaching performances to individual Department and Faculty members for the improvement of their teaching, and to FSPCs for incrementation and promotion, and 6. That GFC urge the University's administration and the AASUA to turn their attention to the problem of evaluating and encouraging the improvement of teaching."

The recommendations quoted here in full are those which were approved by Council. Recommendation 6 is, perhaps, a little misleading, inasmuch as both groups mentioned are already very deeply committed to the continuing improvement of instruction. There was a sense in the original recommendation, however—at least in its presentation—that it was concerned with material stimuli for the

You Are Needed as a Volunteer

The University of Alberta Hospital in Edmonton offers over twenty-five different areas for volunteer work. The hospital essentially has something for almost everyone. For example, assistance is required in the quiet setting of the library, in active sports such as swimming and bowling, in tutoring students, in clerical work, in visiting, in reading to those who are ill and in taking children on field trips. No matter how many or how few are the hours one has available, the hospital can make good use of them.

Volunteer work is one of the most rewarding ways of helping others.

Information concerning the hospital's volunteer programs is readily available from Peggy DeJonge, Volunteer Coordinator. She may be reached in her office in the Main Building of The University of Alberta Hospital, telephone 432-8428. □ improvement of instruction. Also, given the stress placed on the wide dissemination of knowledge within the University (see Recommendation 4), it must be noted that the CITL gave equal weight to furnishing alumni and the wider public with information about the University's emphasis on the quality of teaching. The CITL, however, did not make specific recommendations how that goal might be achieved, with the result that that recommendation was referred for more detailed consideration. □

Associate Comptroller Appointed

Robert J. Leonard has been appointed Associate Comptroller of The University of Alberta. He will take up the duties of that office on 1 June 1980—a move that coincides with the retirement of Murray Rousell as Comptroller and the commencement of A.S. Knowler's as Mr. Rousell's successor.

Mr. Leonard is currently an Administrative Accountant for the University. Prior to being appointed to this position in 1974, he was, in order, Senior Clerk; Accountant; Administrative and Professional Officer, Trust Accountant; and APO, General Accountant. Mr. Leonard was involved in public practice, accounting, in Edmonton from 1962 until 1965, the year of his initial appointment to the University.

He was a member of the Board of Governors of the Certified General Accountants Association, Prairie Region, from 1966 to 1972, and held the office of president of the association in 1971-72.

Mr. Leonard has been a member of the Accounting Research Committee, Canadian Association of University Business Officers, since 1978.

At Spring Convocation next month, he will be conferred the degree of Master of Business Administration. □

Ukrainian Language Resource Centre

The Ukrainian Language Resource Centre (ULRC), located at 335 Athabasca Hall in the Canadian Institute of Ukrainian Studies, has a collection of materials essential to all types of Ukrainian language education. Its holdings can be grouped into three major areas: audio-visual materials, references and books.

Audio-Visual Holdings

The Resource Centre houses over 100 Ukrainian phonograph records, 100 films and videotapes, numerous cassette tapes, filmstrips and slides. All necessary preview equipment is also available for the convenience of teachers, students and researchers.

Journals and Reference Materials

The Centre subscribes to twenty-eight journals: twelve Ukrainian language children's magazines, four Ukrainian language and twelve English language teachers' journals. In addition, newsletters from various organizations and associations of language teachers are received. This keeps the Institute in touch with local, national and international conferences, workshops and research.

Reference works in a variety of fields are available in the ULRC. These range from Dytiacha Entsyklopediia (a ten-volume Children's Encyclopaedia) to Entsyklopediia kibernetiky (Encyclopaedia of Cybernetics in two volumes). The Centre houses a large variety of dictionaries and specialists' books on music, literature, physiology, biology, economics, political science, technology and law.

It is hoped that this wide collection will aid Ukrainian teachers in upgrading their own language skills and keeping abreast of new developments in contemporary Ukrainian speech.

Books

While most Canadian schools have their own libraries, few schools with Ukrainian-English bilingual classes have an adequate collection of Ukrainica at their teachers' disposal. The ULRC is an attempt at filling that gap.

The Centre now hold approximately 3,000 volumes and the collection is growing steadily. Its single largest component is children's literature suitable for use in classes from kindergarten through secondary school. Ukrainian language and literature manuals constitute the second largest group. These include materials published in Canada, United States, Ukraine, Australia, Britain and elsewhere; this section has a significant growth potential. The third group is made up of other Ukrainian studies manuals, especially in history, geography, ethnography, art and culture.

Another large category of books are works on various subjects, especially those taught in Ukrainian in Alberta's bilingual program. These include manuals on music, the social sciences, art, crafts, sports, as well as mathematics, physics, chemistry, geology, biology, technology, cooking and many others. Music books are a particularly attractive part of the collection. The cataloguing process is nearing completion; work will then start on a subject catalogue to facilitate use of the Centre's holdings by teachers. The Ukrainian Language Resource Centre is administered by Dr. A. Hornjatkevyc who is available for consultation from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday. □

Alumni with privilege cards, family members of staff and students with privilege cards, and members of the non-academic staff who are without privilege cards are all ineligible to participate in the programs advertised.

Positions Vacant On-Campus

Faculty Secretary

The Faculty of Arts requires a talented secretary and resource person for a highly demanding position, responsible to senior Faculty councils and seven associated committees. The complex duties of this Administrative Professional Officer include the arrangement of meetings, establishment of agendas, assembly of background material, recording of discussions and the drafting of Minutes. The successful candidate will be responsible for the preparation of reports, maintenance of rosters and terms of reference. The ability to organize work flow, as well as considerable tact in dealing with people and communications skills are essential. The executive secretary will maintain liaison with departments and other Faculties. Limited clerical assistance is available so that the incumbent will have to do the bulk of his/her own typing. Shorthand is desirable.

Applications, complete with résumés and references, must be forwarded to the Dean of Arts by mid May. The position will become effective 1 July. Salary range begins at $17,000 and is subject to change in July 1980.

For information contact the Dean's Office, 6-37 Humanities Centre, 432-4221.

Nurse Practitioner Program Instructor

Applications are being accepted for the position of obstetrical instructor. This appointment will commence 2 June 1980. Areas of responsibility include: lectures in obstetrics, clinical supervision, preparation of exams and marking of assignments and exams, and some monitoring of general lectures.

Requirements for the position are: midwifery preparation and extensive experience, graduation from a nurse practitioner program and/or nursing station experience. A BSc degree is preferred.

Please direct further enquiries and curriculum vitae to: Nursing Director, Nurse Practitioner Program, 3-103 Clinical Sciences Building, The University of Alberta, Edmonton, Alberta, T6G 2G3.
